

Web Lab Two:

You will open the Terrain.htm file and create the embedded style id “featureBox” to add to the features. Add the necessary styles:

width:60
border-width:10px;
border-style:double;
border-color:blue;
float:left;

You will need to also add the image file “bullet.jpg” for the bullet list (list-style-image) in the box. Do not affect the Performance Features bullet list. It will look like the page below when you finish.

You might also need to add another embedded id for the “Engine and Performance” part so the bullets will stay outside the features box. If you do, you will need the following styles:

margin:10px;

Notice that the subheadings inside the box are the same color as the border. Last, the hr line should be below the box as well as the address (clear float)

There are a few different ways that you might use other than above and achieve the same results and that is okay if you want to branch out but your display might not match mine exactly (line height, font size) depending on browser plus mine is an image of the screen.

Crossovers

GMC Terrien

Overview

The Terrain small SUV features a long list of comfort and convenience features premium cloth is standard on SLE models and a chrome-trimmed gear selector accentuates the interior of every model.
